

RICH FARMER ATTACKS BOY

Plunges Tines Of Pitchfork Into Abdomen Of The Young Guest Of His Son.

BOY OVERDROVE A FAVORITE TEAM

Youth Had Abused A Span Of Horses, Which So Enraged The Farmer That He Fiercely Attacked The Visitor.

Chicago, July 27.—Enraged because his son and a young chum overdrove one of its teams, Henry Chester, the wealthiest farmer of Lake county, Indiana, plunged a pitchfork into the abdomen of Thomas H. McClain, the friend of his son, Charles, throwing the youth to the ground mortally wounded.

The wealthy old man is in jail at Crown Point.

McClain, who is nineteen years old, and lived at Seventeenth street and Jackson Park boulevard, Chicago, is dying.

The elderly farmer, in his fury, after the boys had brought home his favorite driving span cruelly overdriven, seized the pitchfork and lunged at them frantically.

Angry Man Uses Pitchfork.

The tines of the pitchfork went through McClain's wrist, and a second thrust buried the fork in his abdomen.

Charles Chester was the only witness to the fight. With his father in jail and his chum dying, he must decide for sire or friend—in his sworn testimony on the tragic affair.

The affray occurred on the great Chester farm, famed through northern Illinois, which lies but a few miles from Hammond, Ind.

Young McClain was enjoying farm life as the guest of his chum. The boys went driving with the two fast trotters of the elder Chester. It is said they took the horses without permission.

Scientists of Chicago University Secure Negatives of Spots on the Sun.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Chicago, Ill., July 27.—Several of the assistants of the University of Chicago astronomers who have been at the Yerkes observatory at Wilson's Bay, Wis., returned today, bringing more negatives of photographs of sun spots taken several days ago. The scientists fear that the phenomenon will not continue as long as they hoped, because of the sun's rotation. The question whether this phenomenon has any direct connection with atmospheric disturbances on the earth is still in dispute among the astronomers. Some assert that the recent hot wave was a result of the sun's disturbance, while others disagree with it, they holding that the severe weather of this season is a natural consequence of the rule that an unusually severe winter is invariably followed by an equally hot summer.

HEBREWS DISCUSS COLONIZATION OF EASTERN AFRICA

Jews May Decide to Settle There Until Palestine Can Be Regained for the Scattered Sons of Israel.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Lucerne, Switzerland, July 27.—More than thirty Jews from America were present at the opening of the seventh international Zionist Congress which opened here today. This date was selected because it is the Hebrew anniversary of the death of Dr. Theodore Herzl, the founder of the movement. The ordinary congress will be followed by an extraordinary session for the consideration of the East African colonization project. A special commission was sent to visit the proposed site of the settlement in East Africa last December and its report will be read to the congress.

This land has been offered by the British Government, and one section of the executive committee has decided to recommend that the offer be refused, but that the offer be turned over to other Jewish charitable societies to see if they could make use of it. Many Zionists on the other hand, however, believe that the offer should be accepted until they can get hold of Palestine.

The election of a successor to Dr. Herzl will also take place during the extraordinary session. Among the American delegates are Dr. Henry Friedenwald, of Baltimore, president of the American Federation of Zionists; Assistant State's Attorney Leon Zelikoff, of Chicago, head of the Knights of Zion, and the Hebrew poet, Naftali Herz Imber.

TALL CARP STORY VOUCED FOR BY RYAN WAREHOUSE

Three Young Ladies Employed there Landed a Fifteen-Pounder Wednesday.

One of the tallest carp stories on record comes from the Ryan leaf tobacco warehouse on North Main street. The Misses Annie Gibbs, Rose Lueck and friend who are employed there are credited with landing, by joint effort, a fifteen pound carp Wednesday noon. The struggle lasted fifteen minutes and when the "strike" first came the young lady who was holding the pole was nearly jerked into the stream. The river basin from the upper dam to the Court street bridge is said to be infested with so many of these first cousins of the sucker that the water has considerable difficulty in getting through.

SPURNS MOTHER WHEN WEALTHY

Private Secretary To Gates Has His Mother Arrested For Asking For Money.

WOMAN RELATES A PITIFUL STORY

Weds Man Who Squanders Her Fortune--Daughter Of Lord Mayor Of London--Danced With King Edward.

New York, July 27.—James E. Foye, private secretary of Charles G. Gates, son of the Chicago millionaire, caused the arrest of his mother, Mrs. Florence Foye, in front of the Waldorf-Astoria, hotel when she stopped him as he was hurrying from lunch and begged him to give her money for food.

"My brother was a colonel in the Honorable Artillery and at a dance given by that organization when I was a girl I danced with the present king of England."

Her Fortune Disappears.

"I came here during the centennial and went to the Grand Union hotel. There I met and fell in love with James Foye, the head hall man. He soon squandered my fortune of $140,000, gold my beautiful gowns and my jewelry and left me in want. I divorced him and he afterward died in the hospital on Ward's island. I attended the funeral, which was a magnificent affair paid for by my son. When the mourners returned carriages were waiting for every one but me. My son never even asked me if I had car fare."

"Up to last year I supported myself by working first as a trained nurse and superintendent of the women's nursery at Bellevue and later as a matron on the recreation piers. This year Commissioner Featherstone dropped me."

Retains Insurance Money.

"My husband left $5,000 insurance, which my son got. I asked the boy to let me have one-third of it, which I thought I was entitled to because my husband was about $3,000 in arrears in his alimony. But my son refused to give me a penny. I went to see his employer, Mr. Gates, and he assured me that my son would have to take care of me or leave his employ. Later I went to see him again and was told not to bother him any longer. We're not for the fact that I have been very ill during the last year I would not ask my son for a penny. But I have been unable to support myself and have been in dire poverty, while he has been enjoying ease and comfort."

EMERERY

CITIZEN TALKS IN A SENSIBLE WAY

SUNSHINE IN THE HOMES IS VERY ESSENTIAL.

SALUTATIONS ON THE STREET

Are Out of Place in Public Places—Care Should Be Taken That They Are Not Publicly Given.

Mr. Editor: Too much shade breeds mosquitoes and an unsanitary air. Our residences should be conditioned to receive every ray of light from the life-giving sun that is possible to obtain. A man in Paris has his house arranged or a turn-table, to enable him to get the sunshine on some part of his dwelling all day. We can have a pretty lawn without the sunshine. Let the sun shine on our person, then we will have sunshine in our hearts to reflect on others.

Salutations.

Salute with a kiss—at a proper time and place. Improprieties are telling. Salutations from or to persons in carriages or cars, in doorways, windows, or porches, are not correct. We may know who to, and from, such salutations are made, but others may not, hence the trouble. We all wish to be correct then no embarrassment. Salutations to or from people in parade, or in marching columns, are irregular. Street recognitions, not always convenient, and most times unnecessary. In meeting or passing a good-looking—well, we might say, a handsome lady on the street and being imbued with gallantry, recognitions should be returned. But mistaken identity so frequent, and so annoying, we think it better to cut out salutes on our crowded streets.

The Time to Retire.

The time when a business man should retire has been a mooted question among good minds for some years. The press also has dwelt more or less on this interesting question, but has been confined more in giving publications of the views of those already retired or of those contemplating such a step.

The question to the common mind appears easy of solution. It has no foundation for an argument, but is of sufficient interest to those who can or may retire with a competency, and an assurance against the inroads of the many bachelors, which will be sighted against their peace and tranquility to the end.

Now, since man, by the fall of Adam, is a creature of want, and since the irrevocable edict has gone forth, "In the sweat of thy face thou shalt eat bread"—it is the part of wisdom to yield to the inevitable and retire from business when he is mentally or physically disqualified for the same. Not until then, we think.

Man's mission is to labor in the industries of the world, incessantly. He can be happy only in such a sphere.

To retire from active business, does not necessarily follow that one should sit with folded hands. The best part of that man's life may be happily spent and prolonged in active good work and words to others.

The Police Again.

The efficient police force are causing less loafers to be seen. Move on! should be the order. Loafers are no ornament to street corners, stairways, store fronts, saloon steps, or doors—to the latter they are a bad advertisement.

With sobriety, industry and ordinary intelligence, the city guardian is imbued with every requisite for retention in service for many years and become eventually a retired pensioner. Sobriety is the key to the whole situation. An officer who will imbibe at all, on any occasion, most particularly on Sunday, is absolutely disqualified for any good in the service. If the loafers have nothing to do, they should go fishing. But, better go home to help sister or mother, or practice in athletics in the way of useful labor.

Yours very sincerely,

"CITIZEN."

At the bottom of the new sewer trench on Pleasant street a horse belonging to a man living on the western outskirts of the city was discovered by Charles Snyder at an early hour this morning. PRACTICALLY ALL CROPS EXCELLENT Government Report Tells of Many Good Yields and Favorable Weather Conditions.

United States Department of Agriculture climate and crop bulletin issued for the week ending Monday, July 24, by the Weather Bureau.

The weather during the past week has been extremely favorable for farm work or all kinds in all sections of the state. The continued dry weather has been exceptionally fine for the cutting, curing and housing of the hay crop, and with the high temperature the entire week, has produced a very beneficial condition for the advancement of all growing grains, grasses and vegetation in general.

Light local showers fell in most all sections, which were very beneficial on uplands.

The eastern portions of the middle and northern sections were visited by a terrific wind storm on the 17th and 18th, laying flat entire fields of grain and doing much damage to corn, grasses, and also buildings. The rain in some counties was extraordinarily heavy.

Winter wheat and rye have made excellent progress during the week, under the influence of the favorable weather conditions, and in some fields in favored sections harvesting is now practically completed. The straw is strong and of good color, and the lodging has proved to be of minor consequence in most sections.

The good growing weather has brought these crops forward very rapidly and the outlook is very satisfactory.

Spring grains have continued to make unusually rapid and heavy growth, and while the lodging has proven troublesome in a few localities, the stand is strong and heavy, and the quality of the grain excellent. Oats and barley have sustained some damage from the high winds but are in satisfactory condition. There has been very little complaint of rust.

Corn has continued to make rapid improvement under the influence of the favorable weather conditions; the color continues to improve, and the crop, especially on high lands, is making very satisfactory progress. Many fields are beginning to tassel. In the eastern portion of the state where the crop has been somewhat backward, considerable improvement is noted, and on the whole the outlook throughout the greater portion of the state is very satisfactory.

Potatoes continue to make excellent progress throughout the greater portion of the state, and the favorable weather has caused much improvement in the general appearance of the crop, even where the outlook has been very unsatisfactory at the present week. There is some complaint of bugs, but the damage from this source has not yet proven serious.

Tobacco continues to make excellent progress; the plants have improved considerably during the past week and the outlook for an excellent crop is very promising. Cutworms are doing some damage, but none more than usual.

Grass and Pastures: The weather during the past week has been very favorable for the securing of the hay crop, and many farmers have secured a large crop of excellent quality. While there has been considerable damage during the season from various sources, the hay crop has been unusually large, and notwithstanding the large amount lost owing to the heavy rains and high winds, the crop remains better than usual. Farmers are improving the opportunity to secure the remainder of the crop, and with favorable weather little further damage is anticipated. Timothy cutting continues and the yield is heavy and the quality excellent. Pastures continue to make good growth and are furnishing an abundance of feed.

Minor Crops: The pea crop continues to improve rapidly and the outlook for a very good yield is very satisfactory in all sections. Sugar beets are excellent and are making good progress. Gardens have been much improved by the favorable weather conditions.

Fruit: Raspberries and cherries still promise heavy yields, and except where damaged by local storms, promise good crops. There is considerable complaint of blight on apple and plum trees in some sections, but damage from this source is by no means general. Currant bushes are well filled with fruit of good quality.

From Field Correspondents

Waterloo, Jefferson county: Fine weather for haying and harvesting; much hay has been cut and put into the barns in good condition; winter wheat and barley mostly harvested, and seems to be the largest crop since 1860.—D. J. Hoyt.

Afton, Rock county: Weather favorable for haying and harvesting and a large acreage of hay secured in good condition; corn growing rapidly and tobacco and sugar beets are making excellent progress.—U. G. Waite.

Beloit, Rock county: A splendid week for haying and the crop practically all secured; oat harvest commenced; weather during last few days much cooler.—A. C. Powers.

Potosi, Grant county: Wheat has been favorable for haying; oats and wheat ripening rapidly; some rust reported on oats, but otherwise the crop is very good.—J. J. Tobin.

Gay's Mills, Crawford county: Past week fine for crops and farm work; some fine hay secured; rye cut and in shock and good crop; corn doing relatively well, and some fields silking; potatoes about a week behind the average.—J. L. Stowell.

to the fullest possible extent for crop production a small annual rainfall. One such plan or cultivation is to conserve in the soil the rainfall of two years for the production of one crop in one year—a splendid plan to make productive a vast area of semi-desert—but a somewhat different proposition from raising five crops in one year by irrigation, as can easily be done on the irrigable desert lands of the southwest.

FASHION NOTES

GOWNS FOR DINNER WEAR.

The fad for dining out increases every season and brings out some wonderfully pretty gowns. Then the decorations of some of the smart cafes and restaurants, with their flocks of green form charming setting for summer frocks.

A charming design in black and white is made of chiffon over a thin white silk lining. The skirt reaches the floor, the fullness about the waistline is disposed of by means of shirring three rows deep. The bodice is also shirred in at the waistline. A six-inch girdle, an inch or so of which extends over the top of the skirt, the other five overlapping the bodice—accompanies the frock and is made of black satin of very lustrous quality, fastened to the left of the front with a jeweled buckle.

The sleeves are formed in the way of a single full puff that droops down from the shoulders, each being shirred on cords four times just above the elbows, and finished by a short double ruff of the chiffon, from under which droops a single ruff of white lace two inches longer than the chiffon over the ruffle.

The bodice is cut a V shape, both back and front, with a vest of embroidered gauze. Dropping from the front is a shaped bertha of white lace and plaited chiffon stitched on with black silk in fancy stitches.

Skirts are growing wider, and this applies not only to the designs of sheer materials, but of others as well.

Even the moderate ones are at least five yards around the hem, while eight are not too many to be considered for skirts of thin materials, the width being distributed in any number of gores varying from nine to twenty-seven.

Except for the fullness of their flare and grace, however, one would never suspect so much material in one skirt, for the fullness is so artistically disposed of in tucks, plaits and shirrings that it is almost impossible to have any bunglesome effect around the waistline.

Taffeta makes delightful gowns for evening wear, both in solid colors and the delicately patterned designs.

This material seems to be at its height this year. Frocks of the silk accord so charmingly with the flower-trimmed, tip-tilted hats so much affected that the secret of its success is easily explained.

The approved trimmings for taffeta gowns are shirrings of the same fabric, lace of all descriptions and colors, velvet ribbon, satin and chiffon.

Tiny plaitings of satin and silk set off this costume to splendid advantage and used in combination with smart silk braids are really elegant.

For short summer trips and semi-dressy wear, nothing is better than taffeta in brown, blue, green or black.

Such a design has a plaited skirt and coat, the latter of the box variety.

It is intended for wear with smart collars and cuffs of white embroidered linen, which add so much of neatness an chic to tailored suits of all materials this season.

The very sheer voiles and veillings are used extensively for evening and dinner gowns, but in very delicate colorings. Sometimes they are self-lined, and again they are built over taffeta of a lighter or darker shade of the same color.

Everything possible is done to heighten the effect of evening dresses and lace, embroidery and ruchings are used with reckless hand in their decorations.

Radium silks might safely be classified among the hold-over fabrics, for it is pretty definitely settled that they will be worn after the leaves begin to turn and fall. That they are elegant goes without saying and whether trimmed or untrimmed they accommodate themselves to the most graceful and charming of the modes.

Wherever supply of water can be developed for the irrigation of arid or semi-arid land, its production would be enormously increased over what it would yield under any system of dry land farming.

It is unfortunate that so few people appreciate the vast difference between irrigation and dry land farming in the West.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, July 27, 1865.—Reducing the Price of Fuel.—There is a scheme on foot to get coal to our citizens at wholesale prices. Mr. C. E. St. John makes the proposition to furnish coal at wholesale prices, one dollar added for the expense of attending to the work and delivering. He has a large number of subscribers already, and any others who may desire to enter into the arrangements can do so by leaving their order with Mr. St. John or with Messrs. Dunn & Fisher.

The Busy Ticket Agent.—We are at the junction of the Milwaukee & Prairie du Chien with the Chicago & Northwestern railway, at Milton, the other day, and remarked the rush and excitement at that place so quiet other than at train times—the regiments returning are going to their homes in large numbers, and the soldier boys "make troubles."

Charles Potter, the gentlemanly ticket agent, had his hands more than full, dealing out tickets. More than two hundred waiting, not very patiently, until their time should come. He performed his business well, showing that he understood it. We also noticed the large amount of transfer baggage—requiring the attention of five men. All this shows a good degree of prosperity. We judge that the railway companies are reaping a rich reward, and the traveling community are evidently waiting for that fall which shall touch their pockets.

Local rains, probably thunderstorms tonight and Friday; fresh east to south winds.

Have you always accomplished all, on the morrow, all of the things you have "put off" doing until then? If you have, you are now a very rich and a very happy man. If you have not, you ought to be a wiser man and stop fooling yourself. How many times have you deferred until another time the adequate advertising of your business? Did the time ever come?

THE VIRTUE OF LAND OWNING.

Commenting on a recent address of Booker T. Washington advising the negroes "to buy land and own your own homes while land is cheap," and before the Germans and Scandinavians come to this section and buy it up," "The Savannah News" heartily commends the policy, not only for the sake of the negro, but for the sake of the white South. The negroes who own land, it declares, are, as a rule, prospering and are steady workers. The man with property interests in a community is naturally conservative. Home owning, the world over, is a foundation for law and order and for prosperity, and if the negroes are to be cured of the characteristic faults which worry their white neighbors, and even make them fear for a civilization so surrounded by ignorance, shiftlessness and lawlessness, they must be brought in large numbers to have a positive personal interest in that civilization. The old prejudice which put obstacles in the way of the negro land holder was itself a fertile source of the evils which is deplored. It promoted irresponsibility and the congegation of the blacks in the towns. Happily, that prejudice has pretty well vanished, and there are few places where a sober, industrious negro cannot buy land and start as a farmer. "The Savannah News" reports that in Georgia "any thrifty negro can own, clear of debt, in ten years, a farm of fifty or one hundred acres, and have it well stocked and provided with all necessary farm implements."

The problem now seems to be to get the negro to take the land. Dr. Washington has hitherto told of the answers made to him by city negroes when he asked why they were not on the farms. The lack of good schools and the lack of protection from mobs were generally spoken of, and no doubt better schools and better order are needed to encourage the negroes to live where they can do the most good to themselves and the nation. But even the negroes who remain in the country need a vast amount of Dr. Washington's teaching. They work on the land, but they do not buy land. They spend their money as fast as they make it, and are no further ahead at the end of five years than they were at the beginning. Great sums of money have been made by negroes in cotton in the last few years. The tenant farmers with good crops and high prices had more money than they knew what to do with. They might have started out as land owners on their own account and soon have had their fortunes on a firm foundation; but, the great majority were still in the childish stage. They did not buy lands and cattle, but cheap vehicles and showy harness. In the neighborhood of Savannah the dealers in vehicles and gewgaws reaped a rich harvest, after the last cotton crop was cleared up, from a people who were complaining of poverty and lamenting their inability to maintain schools.

The extent of the trade in cheap luxuries measures pretty fairly, in inverse ratio, the thrift of any community. Immediately after the great hurricane in Porto Rico, when the industries of the island were prostrated, the Porto Ricans spent enormous sums, in proportion to their wealth, for Christmas gifts and toys. The negroes are likewise careless and free with their money, using it to gratify vanity and idle whims. If Dr. Washington can stop this and turn them into pleasant proprietors, he will have laid a firm foundation for their future. As a race of thrifty farmers their position in the nation would be unassailable; and, instead of finding them a problem, the nation would find them an ever increasing source of strength. They could be to the South as important an element for stability and prosperity as the French peasants are to France, were they once to become the owners and steady tillers of the land.

PRESS COMMENT.

Rockford Register-Gazette: It is now easy to see that the tree which bore "Peach" Depew wasn't sprayed.

La Crosse Leader-Press: The "deferred dividend" policy seems to be in the class with three-cent monte and the "shell" game.

Menasha Record: The socialist idea when reduced to practice seems to be to divide with mankind that which he has not and to hang onto that which we have.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: Former Chief of Police O'Neill is now explaining why he resigned. It would be more to the point if he would explain why he held on for so long after he was expected to resign.

Chicago News: It must be very annoying to the New Yorker who subscribed for "Fads and Fancies" just on account of his passionate love for good literature to have his motive misunderstood.

Evening Wisconsin: The sun spots are still there, but the hot weather has been missing for several days.

Green Bay Gazette: The governor's lecture tour has been cut a trifle short. Congress will convene in a special session on November 10 if the president's present plans are carried out.

Madison Journal: One of the prettiest local benefactions would be municipal bath houses. How does Madison ever expect to build up as a summer resort if a stranger coming there on a hot day can not find facilities for jumping into the lake?

Milwaukee is fast coming to the front. Her population has increased $3,000 over last year, making her the twelfth city in size in the United States, almost as large as Cincinnati. She is famous for her beer, also for her grafters.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Coal dealers are horrified at the disclosures of large profits. They would have it understood that the only time they make any money is in the summer when they advance the price ten cents a month and nobody buys.

Milwaukee News: Daniel S. Jamont was an able man. But he might have ended his life editing a country newspaper or in selling lightning rods or a patent gate to farmers had he not crossed Grover Cleveland's path and found opportunity knocking at his door.

Clinton Herald: It is certain that a gang of thieves are operating in this part of the state and it will be well for officers to keep steady vigilance at night. A little more than a week ago stores were broken into at Durand, and Thursday night a big haul was made at Durand, Ill., several stores being burglarized.

Green Bay Gazette: District attorney McGovern of Milwaukee has again lifted his grand jury net with a haul of twenty-four indictments. Two newspaper reporters and Chief Clancy of the fire department are among the indicted. And still the grand jury is busy at work.

Evening Wisconsin: The Savanna-ha international challenge cup is American property for the first time in eleven years through the winning of the third race of the series by the yacht Manchester, at Dorval, Quebec Monday. The persistent grip of the Canadians on this cup was giving them hope that they would be able to do as the Americans have done in the case of the America cup; but they have learned that Yankees are persistent also.

Superior Telegram: The Chinese men say that their boycott of American goods is aimed at the American labor unions. It seems that their marksmanship is very bad, inasmuch as they are especially boycotting Mr. Rockefeller's kerosene oil. When a blow is aimed at the labor union man and instead of reaching its destination it lands on Mr. Rockefeller's bald plate, there is something wrong with the aim that guides the blow.

Madison Journal: Tell the next man who doesn't believe in "a college education" that every young man of the one hundred and four who passed our civil and electrical course had good positions awaiting them the day they received their diplomas. The man who wants things "to pay" will be convinced by the incident, though, of course the waiting job isn't the end of education from a long range view.

Milwaukee Sentinel: To the patriotic soul of Gov. Hoch the chase suggests that a white dove would be a good thing to christen the battleship Kansas with. "Why not," asks the governor, "send out a dove when the ship is launched, signifying our desire for peace?" Perhaps Gov. Hoch has floating around in his mind some misty reminiscences of the dove and olive branch of Admiral Noah as furnishing a suitable naval precedent. However, the navy department fails to see the relation of a battleship to a dove: so looks as if the Kansas will have to be christened with a bottle of champagne in the old joyful way, in spite of the wounded sensibilities of the governor and Carrie Nation.

Rockford Star: Surgeon General Hoxie attributes Secretary Hay's death to the overstrain of public life, and among other distinguished Americans who have recently died from the same cause, he mentions Vice-President Hobart, Senator Hanna and Postmaster General Payne.

He says that these men worked too hard, took too little exercise and got too little sunshine and fresh air.

The same may be said of many men in the public service. This is especially true of Washington, where Bright's disease is quite prevalent among government officials.

This disease, we are told by high medical authorities, is a frequent result of the too strenuous life.

It is needless to say that the Kaiser feels himself quite competent to advise the Czar.

Green Bay Gazette: District attorney McGovern of Milwaukee has again lifted his grand jury net with for a new uniform, which his Chicago military tailor is making for him. The officers mentioned decline to discuss the matter further than to admit the facts.

Among other officers of the Wisconsin National guard who will be affected by the new law are Captain Charles F. Ludington of Milwaukee, commander of the First battery of field artillery, who is employed in the offices of the Milwaukee road at Milwaukee; Major Benjamin F. Dally of Milwaukee, commander of the Second battalion of the First regiment, who is the Milwaukee representative of the Pennsylvania railway, and Trooper Ford of Milwaukee, a private in troop A, First cavalry, who is employed in the office of a railway company in Milwaukee.

There are doubtless scores of other officers and enlisted men in the Wisconsin military establishment who will be affected in the same way.

Give an Opinion.

The attorney general yesterday rendered an opinion to the effect that no public officer, under the new rate commission act and the anti-pass law, can use any free transportation issued by railroads. He also holds that it is unlawful for public officials to use transportation paid in part by services, and that newspaper publishers who accept mileage for advertising can not hold public offices.

INTERESTING COLLECTION.

SOUVENIR CARDS IN THE MAIL INCREASE

INTERESTING COLLECTION PASSES THROUGH THE HANDS OF THE POSTAL CLERKS

DAILY.

At this season of the year the amount of mail which passes through the postoffice is greatly increased by the number of souvenir postal cards.

The clerks are too busy to pay much attention to the various engravings and stamps of humorous nature. Postal authorities at Washington, however, are beginning to discriminate against the vulgar, offensive and suggestive cards which are being sent through the mails and which are thrown unbidden on the doorsteps of families.

Travelers in the western states and Europe are sending to their Jonesville friends souvenir cards with beautiful mountain and continental scenery. Those in the east are likewise remembering their friends and relatives in the city with postal cards.

Some are scenes of rivers, summer resorts, large buildings and streets. The humorous cards aggregate nearly half the entire number.

There evidently is a great sale of these cards in all cities, judging from the number received at the Jonesville postoffice.

All fantastic designs and shapes in gaudy colors can be found among the number. Of late the leather cards with a few words of greeting scrawled on them, are becoming popular.

As a rule the recipients are amused and pleased with the remembrance. There is a longing that they might be with their friends on the vacation trip. During the night the clerks at the postoffice sort out the numberless cards to be distributed by the carriers in the morning to brighten the day for the receivers of the souvenirs.

While many of the cards are accepted with delight, in some homes they are fast becoming a decided nuisance. This is especially true of the more offensive cards. Possibly those for whom they are intended would not take offense, but in many instances they fall into the hands of children, upon whom the pictures have an unwholesome effect.

The movement to curb the circulation of these offensive cards has already gained ground in large cities. As yet, however, Jonesville authorities have received no orders from Washington to confiscate the offensive cards.

They can do so on the ground that it is improper matter to send through the mails.

CHAUTAUQUA WILL OPEN ON FRIDAY

INITIAL YEAR OF THE GATHER ING' PROMISES WELL.

MANY FROM THE COUNTRY

Indications Point to a Very Busy
Scene for the Next Ten Days at Mole's Grove.

Tomorrow at one o'clock the first annual session of the Janesville Chautauqua will be officially opened at Mole's Grove just west of the city limits. Located on the banks of the Rock River, with easy access both by cars, on foot, by carriage or boat, the Chautauqua grounds promise to be a busy place for the next ten days. For several weeks past a force of men have been employed putting the grounds in shape, sinking a well for drinking water, clearing out underbrush and otherwise preparing for the coming events. The tents were all in place this noon and the little canvas city appeared as though sprung like magic from the surrounding green trees and shrubs.

Brighton Scene.

At night this little city of ten days will be a veritable fairy scene with a hundred sparkling electric lights shining through the trees along the broad walks and in the tents and on the lecture platform. Tomorrow there are to be five distinct band concerts, music by jubilee singers, lectures and general settling down for the coming ten days. Usually the opening day of Chautauqua is not the best day but the management of the Janesville organization have reversed the plan and mean to make tomorrow the banner day of the ten.

Planning to Attend.

The interest in the coming attraction increases as the day for the opening approaches. While it is probable that there will be no general half holiday, thousands of our citizens will attend the opening exercises tomorrow and hear Mrs. Logan give her wonderful talk on "The Four Great Generals of the Civil War—Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Logan." They will also take advantage of the reception to be tendered this noted woman by the G. A. R. and W. R. C. and personally meet the widow of one of the great heroes of the civil war.

Mrs. Logan.

Mrs. Logan, who is the stellar attraction of the opening is a woman of wonderful talents. She has been on the lecture platform for several years, is a ready writer, a sparkling conversationalist and a delightful lady to meet. She is thoroughly conversant with her subjects, having lived through the days of the great rebellion and having personally known the men she describes. Her husband the gallant General Logan, was one of the soldiers of the late war that never received the prominence his deeds should have gained for him. His talk will be most interesting and eagerly listened to.

Will Be Introduced.

Mrs. Logan will be introduced to the audience tomorrow afternoon by Col. E. O. Kimberley who served under General Logan in his famous fights through the south. Mrs. Logan will arrive in the city this afternoon from Chicago and will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George McKey at their home on Park Place. Mr. McKey is a cousin of Mrs. Logan. The reception after the address of Mrs. Logan tomorrow afternoon will be open to the public and many whose fathers and husbands fought under the banner of the Illinois statesmen will meet her personally.

A Rare Opportunity.

The present Chautauqua is a rare opportunity for Janesville people to hear the best talent the country can afford at a minimum cost. The season tickets are now nearly all exhausted and single admissions can be purchased at the gates. Mole's Grove is beautifully situated for such a camping ground. It is one of nature's beauty spots near the city and improved by the hands of man it will soon be famous as a picnic and summer resort. There is a plan among some of the directors to have the city purchase it for park and turn it over to the care of the Chautauqua association for them to care for.

Take It In.

Saturday you can spend the day in Rockford at a cost of 80c for round trip over the C. & N. W. Ry. with the Janesville Machine Co. excursion. Train leaves 7:20 a. m.

TO DRILL FOR OIL ON VINCENT FARM

Three Experts Have Pronounced Indications Good For Finding the Stuff in Paying Quantities.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Lake Koshkonong by the arrival on the A. O. Vincent farm of three experts, one from Indiana and another from Canada, who were sent for to examine into the traces of oil visible on the water therabouts. These men have stated that the indications are good for striking oil in large quantities and it is understood that a well will be drilled. Forty years ago A. A. Jackson was interested in a company that started out to develop oil in the town of Albion, near Edgerton. This was during the Pennsylvania oil excitement and the thick oil on top of the swamp water fired the promoters with enthusiasm. No well was ever drilled, however.

TRACKS A YEAR AGO.

Johanna Murphy, sister of the late Edmund Broderick who was fatally injured by a locomotive while at work switching for the Northwestern railroad near the waterworks on July 16, 1894, and who died three hours after being removed to the Palmer Hospital, has commenced an action against that railroad with Drs. W. H. Palmer and Edwin P. Woods as co-defendants for $5,100 damages. In her complaint filed by Atty. Ryan & Oestreich she charges that the physicians, acting under the direction of the railroad, and without other authority, cut and mutilated the dead body of her brother, cutting open the abdomen and removing the intestines; that this unnecessarily increased the embalming expenses to the extent of $100 and caused her mental anguish to the extent of $5,000.

CHAPTER II.
THE Earl towered upon the girl, and the black anger upon his brow might have warned a more intrepid person than even she appeared to be that there was peril in trifling. When at last he spoke, his voice was harsh and menacing.

"What do you expect to gain by a statement so preposterous?"

"I expect to gain a father."

The girl's answer trod quick upon the heels of the question, but her color changed from red to pale and from pale to red again, and her hurried breathing hinted of some knowledge of her hazard which nevertheless she faced without flinching.

"My eldest daughter, say you? My eldest daughter is Ann, aged thirteen, a modest little maid. I take you to be older, and I should hesitate to apply to you the qualification I have just coupled with her name."

"I am sixteen, therefore her senior. Thus one part of my contention is admitted. If she is modest, it doth become a maid and is reasonably to be expected, for she hath a mother's care I have had none. If you detect a boldness in my manner, 'tis but another proof I am my father's daughter."

Something resembling a grimace rather than a smile disturbed the white lips of Stratford at this retort. He bent his eyes on the ground, and his mind seemed to wander through the past. They stood thus in silence opposite each other, the girl watching him intently, and when she saw his mouth twitch with a spasm of pain a great wave of pity overspread her face and brought the moisture to her eyes, but she made no motion toward him, held in increasing awe of him.

"Boldness is not a virtue," he muttered, more to himself than to her. "There's many a jade in England who can claim no relationship with me."

This remark calling for no response, received none.

"Sixteen years of age! Then that was in?" The earl paused in his ruminations as if the simple mathematical problem baffled him, the old look of weariness and pain clouding his downturned face.

"The year 1624," said the girl promptly. "Doubtless, doubtless, 1624. It is long since, longer than the days that have passed seem to indicate. I was a young man then; now—now—I am an aged wretch, and all in sixteen years. And so in you, the spirit of youth, the unknown past confronts me, demanding—demanding what?"

"Demanding nothing, my lord."

"Hump! You are the first then. They all want something. You think I am an old dotard who is ready, because you say you want nothing, to accept your absurd proposal. But I am not yet fifty, nor as near it as these fell maladies would have me appear, and a man should be in his prime at fifty. Madam, it will require more convincing testimony to make me listen to you further."

"The testimony, irrefutable, stands here before you. Raise your eyes from the ground, my lord, and behold it. If scrutinizing me, you deny that I am your daughter, I shall forthwith turn from you and trouble you no more."

Stratford slowly lifted his gloomy face, prematurely seamed with care, and his heavy eyes scanned closely the living statue that confronted him. The sternness of his features gradually relaxed, and an expression near akin to tenderness overspread his face.

"Any man might be proud to claim you, my girl, no matter how many other reasons for pride he possessed. But you have not come here merely because some one flattered the Earl of Stratford by saying you resembled him."

"No, my lord. I am come to return to you this document, which once you presented to my mother."

She handed him a paper, which he read with intent care. It ran thus:

I have, in little, much to say to you, or else one of us must be much to blame. But in truth I have that confidence in you and that assurance in myself as to rest secure the fault will never be made on either side. Well, then, this short and this long; I will then at no more than to give you this first written testimony that I am your husband, and that this husband of yours that will ever discharge these duties of love and respect toward you which good men may expect and are justly due from good men to dischargers. And this is not only much but all which belongs to me and wherein I shall treat out the remainder of life which is left to me—

Stratford looked up from his perusal, blank amazement upon his countenance.

"How came you by this paper?"

"I found it among the documents left by my grandfather, who died a year ago. It was sent by you to my mother."

"Impossible."

"Do you deny the script?"

"I do not deny it, but 'twas written by me eight years since and presented to my third wife, whom I married privately."

"Your third wife? Who was she?"

"She was Mistress Elizabeth Rhodes, and is now Lady Stratford."

"Then she is your fourth wife. You will see by your own inditing that this letter was written in March, 1624."

The date was unmistakably set down by the same hand that had penned the bold signature. "Thomas Wentworth," and the bewilderment of the earl increased as he recognized that here was no forgery, but a genuine letter antedating its duplicate.

"It is impossible," he murmured to himself.

clung beside the fire Stratford sank with a sigh of fatigued, motioning his daughter to seat herself opposite him, which she did. He regarded her for some moments with no pleased expression on his face, then said, with a trace of petulance in the question:

"Did your grandfather bring you up a lady, or are you an ignorant country wench?"

She drew in quickly the small feet, outstretched to take advantage of the comforting fire, and the blaze showed her cheek a redder hue than heretofore.

"Sir," she said, "the children of the great, neglected by the great, must perchance look to themselves. I was brought up, as you know, without a mother's care, in the ancient hall of a crusty grandfather, a brother my only companion. We played together and fought together, as temper willed, and he was not always the victor, although he is the stronger. I can sometimes out-fence him and, failing that, can always outrun him. Any horse he can ride I can ride, and we two have before now put to flight three times our number among the yokels of the neighborhood. As to education, I have a smattering and can read and write. I have studied music to some advantage and foreign tongues with very little. I dare say there are many things known to your London ladies that I am ignorant of."

"She was Frances, daughter of Sir John Warburton," murmured the earl. "His only daughter, as I am hers, my lord."

"But when Sir John wrote me, coldly of her death, he made no mention of my issue."

"My grandfather always hated you, my lord. It is very like that he told you not the cause of my mother's death was her children's birth."

"Children?"

"Yes, my lord. My twin brother and myself."

"It, as you say, you have a brother, why is he not here in your place, you in the background, where you properly belong?"

"Sir, I suppose that her good name is thought more of by a woman than by a man. She wishes to be assured that she can properly antenuptiate into this world, whereas a man troubles little of his origin, so be it he is here with some one to fight or to love. Or perhaps it is that the man is the deeper and refuses to condone where a woman yearns to forgive. My brother shares our grandfather's dislike of you. He thinks you cared little for our mother or you would not have been absent during her last days when—"

"I knew nothing of it. The times then, as now, were uncertain, requiring absorbed attention from those thrown willingly or unwillingly into public affairs. What can a boy of sixteen know of the dukes thrust upon a man in my situation?"

"Sixteen or not, he considers himself even now a man of position, and he holds your course wrong. He says he has taken up the opinions you formerly held and will do his best to carry them to success. He is for the parliament and against the king. As for me, I know little of the questions that distract the state. My own knowledge is that you are my father, and were you the wickedest person in the world I would come to you. A man may have many daughters, but a daughter can have but one father; therefore am I here, my lord."

Like the quick succession of shade and sunshine over the sensitive surface of a lovely lake, the play of varying emotions added an ever changing beauty to the girl's expressive face; now a pensive yearning toward her father when she saw he suffered; then a coaxing attitude, as if she would win him whether he would or no; again a bearing of pride when it seemed she would be denied, and throughout all a rigid suppression of herself, a standing of her ground, a determination not to give way to any rising sentiment which might make the after repulse a humiliation. If a retentive instinct it should be carried out with impunity.

A Word of Advice.
Biddlecomb was holding his eldest son in earnest converse.

"My boy," he said, "I am filled with anxiety when I think that you will soon make choice of a wife."

"I have not done so yet, father," the young man replied. "What sort of wife would you suggest?"

The older man looked around cautiously.

"My son," he said, "if your father's advice is worth anything to you, let me urge you to seek a woman who hasn't the independence, the positiveness, the general characteristics of your mother." He was interrupted at that moment by a light footfall and realized that his beloved helpmeet had entered the room. "No, my son," he continued, "do not hope to find another woman like your mother. Such paragons are rarely if ever duplicated."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

She could only find four pennies in her purse, and now she's hunting through all them packages and her shopping bag for the other penny, wondering to herself all the time where in the name of goodness it could have got to."—Chicago Tribune.

Life is a strange combination. Before a boy is old enough to go to school he awakens before daylight and wants to get the whole family up. Later it requires the whole family to get the boy up. Success Easier Than Failure.
We say success is easier than failure; that a man who makes a success in life works less, worries less and has an easier time generally than the man who makes a failure and spends his time in telling how he is smarter than other people, but that "luck" has been against him.—African Globe.

A Living Monument.

If we were to assemble all those who have been cured of heart disease by Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and who would to-day be in their graves had not Dr. Miles' been successful in perfecting this wonderful heart specific, they would populate a large city.

What a remarkable record—a breathing, thinking, moving monument, composed of human lives—that for which every other earthly possession is sacrificed.

The Miles Medical Co. receive thousands of letters from those people like the following:

"I feel indebted to the Dr. Miles' Heart Cure for my life. I desire to call the attention of others suffering as I did to this remarkable remedy for the heart. For a long time I had suffered shortness of breath after any little exertion, palpitation of the heart; and at times terrible pain in the region of the heart, so serious that I could not sit up without dropping dead upon the spot. One day I read one of your circulars and immediately went to my druggist and purchased two bottles of the Heart Cure, and took it according to directions, with the result that I am entirely cured. Since then I never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy to my friends who have heart trouble; in fact I am traveling about the country in this locality."

EARTHQUAKE SHAKES
NORTHERN MICHIGAN.
Seismic Disturbance Creates Excitement in Towns Bordering on the Shores of Lake Superior.

Marquette, Mich., July 27.—An earthquake that shook windows and rattled dishes was felt here shortly after 6 o'clock Wednesday evening, the tremor being especially noticeable along the ridge on the lake shore. The disturbance lasted several seconds and was accompanied by a dull, rumbling noise. An earthquake shock was never before experienced in the history of the city, but it is a scientifically determined fact that the rock-ribbed ridges all along the shores of Lake Superior were the result of volcanic action. According to the telephone advice the earthquake was felt at Ishpeming and Negaunee and other points along the Marquette iron range. Houghton Is Shaken.

Houghton, Mich., July 27.—An earthquake shock was felt throughout Houghton, Baraga, Keweenaw and Ontonagon counties at 6:20 Wednesday evening. Locally the shock was ascribed to a hot air blast at the Quincy mine until it was learned that the same shock was felt 100 miles distant. The shock was of considerable strength and about five seconds in duration. There is no historical record of any previous earthquake in the upper peninsula of Michigan.

Excitement at Calumet.

Buildings rocked and plaster was knocked from walls, dishes fell from shelves and broke, and people rushed from their homes to ascertain the cause of the disturbance or in fear of further shocks. The cause of the disturbance is a mystery.

HO-NO-NE-GAH PARK

This popular and beautiful resort is situated on Rock River, four miles south of Beloit and twelve miles north of Rockford, and is reached by the Rockford, Beloit & Janesville Interurban railroad in 50 minutes from Janesville, a neat station having been established at the outer gate.

In 1895 the tract was purchased by the present owner, Mr. A. F. Goss, who realizing the needs and demands of the public for a convenient and delightful place of outdoor resort, decided to devote a large part of the beautiful woodland in supplying this need and meeting this demand.

Ho-no-ne-gah Park has become the most popular resort, for miles around for those who desire a day's restful outing, for family parties, for neighborhood gatherings, for annual picnics of Sabbath Schools, Societies, the Grand Army of the Republic, Old Settlers' reunions, and for camps for families, for longer or shorter periods.

The grounds are spacious, level and clean, shaded by immense trees with wide spreading lawns adapted to the athletic games of summer, splendid water, convenient structures, swings, boats and every other convenience that can add to the reasonable enjoyment of visitors and campers, the loveliest spot on Rock River in this region. It is essentially a resort for ladies, children and family parties and family campers. The best of order is maintained at all times and the presence of the rude and the lawless is not desired nor will it be tolerated. The grounds are open to the public and will be maintained under proper regulations for the benefit, welfare and pleasure of all.

For information address Mr. A. F. Goss at Beloit, or call on him at the Park.

There is no time like the present to secure splendid bargains in Wash Summer Goods.

Prices have no semblance of their former selves. They are like the Irishman who in his great haste to get out of the burning house, pulled his pants on the wrong way, and although not "burled" he was badly "twisted".

Prices are what count now.

Prices must be low enough to make women realize that a great saving can be made by taking advantage of the present opportunity.
